Katie Schellenberg is a holistic advocate for students with exceptionalities.

A magna cum laude USC graduate herself, Katie is the CEO and founder of BeyondTutoring.com, an educational blog, and Learning Lab LA, a concierge and academic advocacy firm that attempts to create and cultivate lifelong success through learning.

Katie is passionate about learning and education; that is why her background experience includes working with students with a wide range of disabilities, teaching a wide swath of subjects.

Katie has successfully and comprehensively advocated for students at all levels of education, tutoring the underserved immigrant population to become United States citizens, among other worthwhile goals.

Katie serves as a facilitator on Edutopia and sits on a number of non-profit boards.

Katie’s love to help all students to learn motivated her to raise over $100,000 for various charities to date and commits an hour of time, resources and services for every hour billed.

"Katie is a “Jill of all trades”. She has helped all of my children through both her advocacy and educational mapping services. We came to her during an accommodation crisis and through finding root issues and implementable solutions we were able to solve what could have been a disaster in my child’s future. We now use Katie for all things education, from college applications to essays to IEP and college accommodations. She is a master at scheduling, logistics and keeping the peace.” - Leslie, mother of five (four with a learning disability), Atlanta, Georgia

“Our family had spent close to $10,000 on educational consultants and tutors who were unresponsive and did not yield results before we found beyond tutoring. Although Katie services are not exactly inexpensive, the “rate of return” has been unbelievable. I don’t regret a penny. Don’t hesitate, book.” - Mary, mother of two, Bethesda, Maryland

“I used to have college students tutor my son. I felt that showing up to a tutoring session in sweats and possibly hungover was not the best example for my now 10 year old son, Dylan. Despite being a bit more seasoned than the average college kid, Katie readily and creatively incentivized our gifted student by creating and curating curriculum to challenge him beyond his schoolwork. We couldn’t be happier with his progress. The results and Dylan’s happiness speak for themselves.” - Molly, mother of one, Newport Beach, California

“As I have looked for an advocate and tutor for my daughter, Lola, I felt overwhelmed by the sheer number of “tutors” and not very many people who understand both the law and pedagogy of teaching. I felt so lucky to find Katie who has a thorough knowledge of both and is so fun, kind and witty. She delivers on excellent advice and forward progress with flair and undeniable passion.” - Nicole, mom of Lola, Beverly Hills, California
